PROGRAMME OBJECTIVES

Recent changes in technologies, systems, applications and personnel require us to reconsider the skills and abilities for tomorrow's professionals. There is an "expectation gap" between industry needs and academic preparation. Industry and academic institution must work together to close this gap. Academic need to place more emphasis on the applications, data, business functions, integration of technologies and less on traditional and formal system development. Corporate Working Culture is nothing but a set of guiding principles that are the basic foundation for upcoming engineers. It also involves learning of tools, methodologies, standards etc. for making decisions based on the basic facts.

The aim of this workshop is to provide exposure to students to the concepts of Corporate Expectations.

PROGRAMME HIGHLIGHTS

- ❖ Introduction to Corporate Expectations
- ❖ Academic Prerriority Systems
- ❖ Quality through Institution
- ❖ Corporate Work Culture
